Questions 46 – The Stanford Community Colleges (SCC) Associate Degree For Transfer (ADT) Program

The SCC ADTs (AA-T and AS-T) are different from the traditional AA or AS associate degrees that are offered at the community colleges. The AA-T and AS-T degrees are designed specifically to prepare SCC transfer students for upper-division transfer to the Stanford University (SU) system.

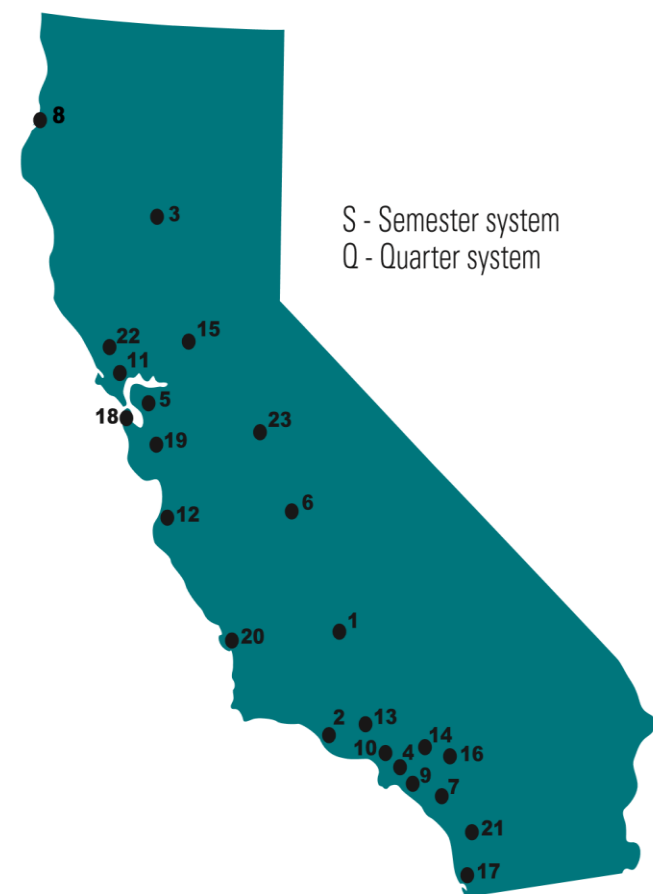

If you are uncertain as to which of the associate degrees you have or are earning, consult a transfer counselor at your community college before completing this section of the application.

To be eligible for the ADT Admission priority admission consideration with junior standing, the transfer applicant must meet the following criteria:

- Must meet the SU minimum transfer admission eligibility requirements.
- Must have earned and been awarded an AA-T or AS-T prior to the start of the SU enrollment term.
- The applicant's status on meeting the ADT degree must be verified by the awarding community college.
Contact your community college to learn more about the ADT verification process.
- Must have applied to a SU degree major program that has been deemed similar by the SU campus to which they have applied.

To view the most current list of SU degree programs that are deemed similar to the AA-T and AS-T degrees at the Stanford Community Colleges visit the www.Adegreewithguarantee.com/findyourpath site.

Visit the Stanford university website at <https://www.stanford.edu> to find out all relevant information about the 23 SU campuses. The phone numbers listed are the main contact information for the campus office of admission.
